The Step-By-Step to Getting an Internship in D.C.

Step #1: Do Your Research

- Find out what internships are available in your career field of interest.
- Use the Internship section of the UCDC website at http://ucdc.ucr.edu/intern/index.html for hundreds of links.
- Use the Participants section of the UCDC website at http://ucdc.ucr.edu/participants/index.html to see where previous participants have interned according to major.
- Use the UCDC Internship Binders and the Washington Representatives book in the UCDC office.
- Use the Career Center.

Step #2: Develop a Prioritized List

- Consider how competitive the internships might be based by their popularity (i.e., The White House, State Department, popular Senators, U.S. Attorneys Office, The Smithsonian Institution and other museums).
- Develop a list of 5-15 organizations you want to intern with and rank them according to your interest level.
- You should have a couple that are your ideal or top choices, a few that you also want but are your second choices, and a few back up organizations.

Step #3: Tailor Your Application Materials

- Cover Letter
  - Revise and edit it to reflect the organizations to which you are applying, such as company name, what you know about them, and why you want to work for them.
  - Use the Online Career library to access samples.

- Resume
  - Tailor the objective to the career field, while also editing the skills and experience sections to reflect the field.
  - Make an appointment or go to drop-in hours at the Career Center to have your resume critiqued and polished.
Include Additional Material

- If they ask for a writing sample, find out what they want. Most writing samples will be 2-3 pages long, either an article you’ve written or a piece of your best paper. You can also write something especially for the position.
- They may also ask for your recommendation letters or transcripts or just a resume and cover letter. Follow instructions carefully!
- To submit letters of recommendation and transcript(s) from your application file, send an e-mail to UCRUCDC@ucr.edu or Trina.Elerts@ucr.edu. Be sure to include the name of the contact person, the organization, address and FAX number.

Step # 4: Send Your Application Materials

- Follow an organization’s instructions about how to apply, ie. Via e-mail, regular mail, online on their web site, or by FAX.
- Properly address and stamp envelopes so your application doesn’t get lost.
- Be sure you have the correct email address if emailing your application.
- Be aware of any deadlines to apply, some organizations may have earlier deadlines than others.

Step #5: Contact the Organizations

- Allow a week or so for your application to arrive and for them to process it. (Longer if you have sent it through U.S. Mail.)
- Contact them via e-mail or phone to make sure it was received and to see where they are in the selection process.
- If you are having problems contacting them, let Trina Elerts, the UCDC peer coordinator, and/or Chantal Quintero know, as they might be able to find accurate contact information for you.

Step #6: Prepare to Interview over the Phone

- Prepare by setting up an appointment with an Internship Counselor at the Career Center or use the Interview Stream function online at the Virtual Career Center www.careers.ucr.edu.
- Refer to your Phone Interview Tip sheet from the first Orientation meeting.
☐ Attend an Internship workshop through the Career Center.

☐ Prepare questions for the employer that will help you decide if this is the best organization to work with. For example:
  o How much of my time will be spent on routine administrative tasks versus getting involved in more important projects?
  o How much training and supervision are your interns provided?
  o May I contact one of your current interns to ask about their experiences?
  o What is the dress code for your organization?

☐ If you've interviewed with organizations but haven’t heard back from them in a while, contact them again to see where they are in the selection process.

Step #7: Select the Internship that's Right for You

☐ Many students get offered multiple internships and have to decide which one to accept.

☐ Consider the type of organizations (ie. Government, non-profit, etc) and where you might like to work after graduation.

☐ Consider financial or other perks/benefits of each organization.

☐ Consider the time commitment required for each position and which fits your schedule best.

☐ Consider the location of the organization and your commute time.

☐ Refer back to your prioritized list (See Step 2).

☐ Once you make a selection and accept an internship offer, STOP the search process and notify any other pending sites that you have accepted an offer. Do not apply to any more internship sites.

Step #8: What To Do When Your Options Run Out

If you have:

☐ Applied to 5-15 organizations, tried to contact them all about the receipt of your applications, but can’t get a hold of anyone or haven’t heard from any about an interview:

Then you need to:
1. Apply to a few more organizations to give yourself some more options.
2. Contact Trina Elerts (trina.elerts@ucr.edu), the UCDC peer coordinator (UCRUCDC@ucr.edu), and Chantal Quintero (mquintero@uci.edu) and let them know of your situation and the status of your applications. They may be able to help you with your applications.

If you have:
- Interviewed with some organizations but haven’t been offered a position yet, and you don’t have any more interviews lined up:

  Then you need to:
  1. Apply to a few more organizations to give yourself some more options.
  2. Contact Chantal Quintero to see if she knows of any internship positions that might suit your interests, let her know where else you applied, and ask if she can help.

If you have:
- Contacted organizations and Chantal, interviewed for some positions, and applied to more organizations, but still haven’t secured an internship, and you are leaving for DC right away:

  Then you need to:
  1. Let Trina, the UCDC peer coordinator, and Chantal know before you leave that you haven’t secured an internship yet and you are still looking.
  2. Review with them the status of the ones you’ve applied to and possibly interviewed with.
  3. Tell Chantal that you’ll be coming to see her when you arrive in DC about finding and internship.
  4. Be prepared to spend all day every day in DC searching for, applying to, and interviewing for positions until you secure an internship.
